

POETRY.

From the Boston Chronotype.
The Popular Creed.
BY CHRALES SHIDAS:

Dimes and dollars! dollars and dimes!
An empty pocket's the worst of crimes!
If a man is down, give him a thrust—Trample the beggar into the dust!
Presumptuous poverty's quite appalling—Knock him over! kick him for falling!
If a man is up, oh! lift him higher!
Your soul's for sale and he's a buyer—
Dimes and dollars! dollars and dimes!
An empty pocket's the worst of crimes!

I know a poor but worthy youth, Whose hopes are built on a mad man's truth, But the maiden will break her vows with ease,
For a woeer cometh whose claims are these—
A hollow heart with an empty head, A face well tinged with the brandy red, A soul well trained in villainy's school—And cash—sweet cash!—he knoweth the rule Dimes and dollars! dollars and dimes!
An empty pocket's the worst of crimes.

I know a bold, and honest man, Who strives to live on the Christian plan, But poor he is and poor will be,
A scorned and hated wretch is he;
At home he meeteth a starving wife, Abroad he leadeth a leper's life—They struggle against a fearful odds Who will not bow to people's gods!
Dimes and dollars! dollars and dimes!
An empty pocket's the worst of crimes!

So get ye wealth, no matter how!
"No questions asked" of the rich I throw—Steal by night and steal by day, (Doing it all in a legal way) Join the church and never forsake her Learn to cant and insult your Maker; By hypocrite, liar, knave and fool, But don't be poor!—remember the rule;
Dimes and dollars! dollars and dimes!
An empty pocket's the worst of crimes!

The Love Lorn.

There is a strain of natural pathos running through the following beautiful verses, that renders them irresistibly attractive. We commend them to all true lovers of genuine poetry:

My een are dim wi' tears, John,
My heart is sair wi' wae, I lie an' watch the stars, John,
A wearying for the day;
Yet it wins bring me rest, John,
An' it canna bring me peace, Till the clay is on my breast, John,
An' thought and feeling cease!

I hae loved ye weel and lang, John, An' shall while I hae life; But ye've caused me mony a pang, John, Wha should hae been my wife, Though ye never said a word, John,
My trusting heart to win, Ye hae leed' before the Lord, John,
An' that is deeper sin!

Ye're hand leed seekin' mine, John,
When naeboddy could see;
An' ye kissed it mony a time, John,
An' wassa that a lee?
An' your een leed looking luvie, John, Whene'er they turned on me; An' your gifts, what did they prove, John,
But love—or treachery?

An' your step leed coming here, John, Sae aft in cauld an' rain, For mony a happy year, John, Whase memory is pain!
For I thought the time would come, John,
When we nae mair would part;
Yet ye gaed without a word, John,
To ease my breaking heart!

Ye cam' o' your ain will, John, Ye saw that I was poor; Ye kenn'd I was nae light o' love; Ye should hae passed our door.
But I loo ye after a', John,
An' pray to God in heaven, That I may be ta'en hame, John,
An' your deceit forgiven! MARY.

*"Leed" means "lied."

Don't always flatter yourself that the persons with whom you are in company, are laughing at your wit. Too often it may be at your folly.

untrimmed finger nails.

"Doctor," said a gentleman who was notorious for laziness in general, and slovenliness of person in particular, "Doctor, I have tried everything I can think of for the Rheumatism, and without the least avail." The doctor after having surveyed him for a moment, inquired if he had ever tried a clean shirt!

AGRICULTURAL.

From the Norristown Herald.
Turnips among Corn.

MR. IREDELL.—I have a few suggestions and facts to offer on this subject, and hope that your readers, who feel an interest in the advancement of the agricultural prosperity of our country, will add more.
Last season, a farmer of my acquaintance who has all along indulged an unpardonable scepticism as to the judiciousness of cultivating turnips among corn, was induced to try it, and from the result, so far at least as one year's experience is capable of operating conviction, he is satisfied that his previous opinions were entirely and wholly wrong. The details of his experiment, as given in a letter to the writer of this, are as follows:

At the last hoeing of his corn, he sowed three ounces of English turnip seed on a part of his field, leaving the other, which was manured and worked precisely as the other on which the turnips were sowed, without anything but corn. The operation of hoeing was accomplished almost entirely with the cultivator, or horse-shoe, and the surface, instead of being broken into inequalities by 'hilling,' kept throughout, perfectly smooth and even to the last.

The turnip seed germinated rapidly, and by the time the corn was full in the milk, the plants had attained the size of a man's hand; but the process of 'bottoming,' as it is called in farming technology, was but little advanced before harvest. The result however was, that from one acre of corn land I harvested 96 bushels of as fine turnips as I ever beheld, and 63 bushels of corn. The turnips did not injure the corn in the least; 63 bushels per acre being exactly the quantity taken from the remaining parts of the field on which no turnips were grown.

It is customary with those farmers who are in the habit of growing English turnips, either for the market, or as winter feed for their stock, to cultivate them on new land; and this is a practice with which I find no fault, as new land is more richly endowed with those principles which are indispensably necessary to the successful development of this root than soils which have been previously cropped; yet the method alluded to above has many and peculiar advantages, and I advise every one who wishes for a winter supply to adopt it in preference to all others.— Hundreds of bushels may in this way be produced without any further expense than that involved in sowing the seed and harvesting the crop.

In conclusion let me say that all lands from which a crop of early peas have been taken, or other vegetables which come early to maturity, if stimulated by a slight application of ashes, gypsum, coal dust or soot, will produce an excellent growth of turnips. I speak from experience on this subject, having practiced the methods described for a series of many years.

Getting On in the World.

There are many different ways of getting on in the world; it does not always mean making a great deal of money, or being a great man for the people to look up to with wonder. Leave off a bad habit for a good one, is getting on in the world—to be clean and tidy instead of dirty and orderly, is getting on—to be careful and saving, instead of thoughtless and wasteful, is getting on; to be active and industrious instead of idle and lazy, is getting on; to be kind and forbearing, instead of ill-natured and quarrelsome, is getting on; to work as diligently in the master's absence as in his presence, is getting on; in short, when we see one properly attentive to his duties, persevering through difficulties to gain such knowledge as shall be of use to himself and others, offering a good example to his relatives and acquaintances, we may be sure that he is getting on in the world. Money is a very useful article in its way, but it is possible to get on with small means, for it is a mistake to suppose that we must wait for a good deal of money before we can do anything.
Perseverance is often better than a full purse. There are more helps towards getting on than is commonly supposed; many people lay behind or miss the way altogether, because they do not see the simple and abundant means which surround them on all sides; and it so happens that these means are aids that cannot be bought with money. Those who wish to get on in the world must have a stock of patience and perseverance, of hopeful confidence, a willingness to learn, and a disposition not easily cast down by difficulties and disappointments.
